

"The city has a significant responsibility in addressing our city's vulnerable.

This includes dealing with the specifics of mental health, addictions, homelessness and poverty.

I've proposed that we need to make available programming and tangible solutions when it comes to each of these challenges.

Of course, this requires the buy-in of city council, and I believe that the mayor should spearhead these initiatives.

As someone who tangibly advocates on a daily basis for those falling through the cracks, the issues listed above are near and dear to my heart. I'm providing another way to successfully build community!

Remember, if people want change, they have to make different choices!"
